In getting housing

Planning, innovation makes the difference

Build a better mousetrap and the world will beat a path to your door, the old saying goes. But little innovative in solving housing problems and the same obviously applies.

Innovation has been the name of the game in the efforts of the Belle Glade Community Development Program (CDP) to put Manor Godfrey into new housing...and the same type of innovation may help out his neighbor.

Program Director George Gartner and his staff, with the cooperation of the Citizens Planning and Advisory Committee (CPAC) found that repairing Godfrey's home at 537 S.W. Ninth St. was too expensive.

So everyone put their heads together and came up with the idea of buying a new home for Godfrey. That isn't supposed to be legal but a way was found to sidestep U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) regulations to the satisfaction of everyone concerned...even HUD.

Godfrey's new house was installed on the lot on Ninth Street Monday and he and his family are moving in this week.

Now Gartner believes he's found an answer to a seemingly insoluble problem of putting in a new building with Mayor William Grear and Bill Bailey.

Gartner said the CPAC had set up three criteria to be followed in any of the projects he undertakes. The homeowner must, no matter how poor, put something into the rehabilitation of his own home; the homeowner shouldn't make a profit and the project should meet the needs of the homeowner and the community without being arbitrary.

Gartner said all three criteria were met in the Godfrey case, stressing that Godfrey is only borrowing the funds at low interest instead of being receiving the new home as a gift.

The Powe case is more complex, however, since Gartner said his income wouldn't even allow him to pay for taxes should a new home be installed. He said the house, next door to Godfrey's is in too poor a condition to rehabilitate.

Adley and Associates representative Bill Brinson (Adley is the city's consulting planner) said he had just about given up on finding the answer.

Gartner said his idea, which he hasn't as yet presented to the CPAC, is to use Powe's large (60 x 108) feet lot. He said the CDP could buy half the lot, put in a new home on what was left and use the new city property as a park.

Gartner said he believed the price of the home could then be put into an escrow account which would pay off annual taxes and insurance premiums, possibly with the interest alone.

In the meantime, a group of Community Development officials from the coast were on hand to see the installation of Godfrey's home, as well as local officials, and Gartner said he has received several inquiries from officials in other areas about how he went about solving Godfrey's problem.

One of those on hand for the setting of the home was former Belle Glade Commissioner Bill Bailey, currently a candidate for the District Five County Commission seat. Bailey said his father had originally sold the lot to Godfrey back in the 1940's. Others on hand were Belle Glade Mayor William Grear, Palm Beach County Division of Community Development Director Ansell Jeffries, County staff member Mikki Lenker, Palm Beach County Advisory Committee member Ann Oxidine of Delray Beach and Committee member Paul Sokol land Noeth Palm Beach.

Gartner said interest has been expressed in the project by officials from California, Georgia and other parts of Florida. He said there is a possibility the project may be written up in NACO, the official publication of the National Association of Counties.

Other people keeping an eye on what's happening in Belle Glade have been HUD officials from Jacksonville to Washington.

Thunderheads bring twisters

Stormy weather the first part of this week has resulted in the dumping of more than four inches of rain on the Belle Glade area and at least three tornadoes.

One of the tornadoes, or high winds caused by it, almost carried off two boys on Whitaker Road Monday.

The boys, Roger Parrish, 9, and a friend, Randy Nichols, 11, were playing on the Parrish porch at 897 Whitaker Road when the wind almost snatched them into the air.

Mrs. Charles Parrish managed to pull both boys inside the house. One had been hanging onto the front door knob and the other pressed against the side of a car in the yard.

The tornadoes, on both Sunday and Monday, and other winds uprooted fields within the area.

Another tornado was reported to have touched down on Northeast 27th Street.

Weather technician C. R. Wilcoxen of the Agricultural Research and Education Center, said the lowering black clouds dumped 1.43 inches of rain at the station Sunday, 1.33 inches Monday and 1.66 inches Tuesday afternoon.

Wilcoxen said that as of Tuesday, 6.2 inches of rain had fallen this month. He said the 52-year average rainfall for August is 8.07 inches and with rain forecast for the next few days, there should be an excess this month.

The weather bureau in West Palm Beach forecast thundershowers and thunder storms again for Wednesday as of Wednesday morning and forecast 70 per cent chance for rain Wednesday afternoon.

There was some discussion during a Belle Glade City Commission workshop session Monday night about the possibility of setting up a local severe weather warning service of some kind.

Police Chief Charles Goodlett said the city had in 1951 used the fire siren atop the city fire station, along with bells and horns, to draw the attention of local residents to an incoming hurricane.

He said those devices helped them to get residents out of poor housing and to shelter.

Wilcoxen said there is no way to predict the precise path of a tornado because of its eccentric path.

He said warnings can, however, be given of tornado watches.

Before and after

South Bay moves on water issue

SOUTH BAY-The go-ahead was given Monday for $1.6 million worth of improvements to the city's water system planned to double the city water treatment plant's capacity and increase water storage by a million gallons.

Three of the city's commissioners approved and passed a resolution in a special session which authorizes the city to borrow $550,000 and accept another $150,000 in a grant from the Farm Home Administration (FmHA).

Charles Anderson, representing the city's engineering firm of Barker, Osha and Anderson, said the grant and loan will pay for modifications to the city's water treatment plant and a million gallon capacity water storage tank.

The city's present water storage, aside from water in the mains, is centered in the 100,000 gallon elevated tank near city hall.

William Eldridge of the Gainesville, FmHA office, said the city must borrow construction money from local banks, no matter what the interest rates, until the $550,000 loan limit is reached.

FmHA will then pay off the bank loan. Eldridge said, and the city will owe that amount to FmHA, paying it off by a bond issue at 5 per cent.

Once the bank loan is cleared out, the city would begin using the grant money, but not until then.

Mrs. Rosalie Collins retires

Mrs. Rosalie Collins may have retired Tuesday from her position as executive housekeeper at Glades General Hospital but she made it clear she wasn't quitting.

Mrs. Collins was honored for more than 24 years of total service, with a seven-year break—in the middle, which she began in 1944 as housekeeper and rates are high enough as long as expenses are kept to a reasonable size.

Before the party broke up, she was asked to become a pink lady and Administrator Ben Clarke commented she ought to become a member of the Board of Trustees since, "you'd certainly know what's going on here."

As part of her retirement party, Mrs. Collins was presented a plaque engraved with the names of all her co-workers in the housekeeper section. She was also presented a silver serving tray and various other keepsakes.

One of those items was a sponge-rubber housecleaning mop twisted with dollar bills.

Mrs. Collins said she came to Belle Glade in 1931 from Tennessee. After beginning her employment with the old MLHA in 1944, she left in 1951 and returned to her old job in 1958. She has been working at the hospital since then.

The checks stop here

News that a number of stolen and forged checks were being passed in the West Palm Beach area and that the passer may be coming toward the Glades may have allowed local police to head off the threat before the passer could get to local merchants.

Belle Glade Police Detective Supervisor J. R. Eberle said he received word late last week a black male

(there was no other description) had passed several bad checks in West Palm Beach and Riviera Beach and may be headed west.

Eberle distributed letters warning local merchants about the bad checks Friday and he said he has received no reports that any were passed in the Belle Glade area.

He said the checks are made out in the name of William and Nancy Atkinson, drawn on the First American Bank of North Palm Beach. He said checks in the name of Thelma Ann Ware, drawn on the First Marine Bank of Riviera Beach are also being passed.

Eberle said the man passing the checks is using the names Wayne Gallon, Leslie McChesne, Murphy Lee Scott Jr., Clyde Chase, Gary Moore, David West Jr. and James Brown.

Woodrow O'Neal in city election

SOUTH BAY-Former City Commissioner Woodrow "Woody" O'Neal qualified Wednesday morning to run against incumbent commissioner O'Neal Walker and candidate Charles Reese.

O'Neal is a veteran commissioner, who was defeated in his bid for re-election last year by now Mayor J. S. "Jay" Smith. He had served two consecutive two-year terms after a lapse from being a commissioner before that.

Walker is seeking his sixth two-year term for re-election this year. In 1946, he became the youngest-ever South Bay City Mayor.

Reese is running his second commission campaign. He has never held office.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Round and round she goes and where she stops, nobody knows... even if they do have the worries about it.

I'd heard about 'em all my life and I'd seen what they could do but Sunday was the first time I've ever seen a tornado in the flesh, if you could call that ominous black tower doing the twist all the way to the ground from those rain-soaked clouds overhead.

But wouldn't you know that after I'd stood there gape-mouthed for a few minutes and finally thought about getting a picture for the front page, just to let the town know about their Sunday visitor in case they didn't see it themselves, it was just about gone by the time I got back outside with the camera.

But if I saw one, at least I didn't become as intimately involved as a couple of boys in the area did Monday.

Roger Parrish and Randy Nichols just about pulled a Dorothy and took an unwanted trip on the back of another twister that followed up the one I saw by almost ex. 'iv 24 hours.

The two boys were playing on the porch of the Parrish home Monday afternoon when the wind hit and tried to suck them right along with it.

Now that might have been a fun trip Dorothy took but I doubt the two boys would've thought very much of a similar journey. Matter of fact, I'd have to place it somewhere down at the bottom of my drawers, list it as, like, just before being burned at the stake and right after drowning.

Talk about something to make your heart go pitty-patter, I think the one Sunday was just about enough. I've seen one of the critters but I don't believe I want to shake hands.

Television is bad for youngsters' teeth. Just got the word from the Florida Society of Orthodontics and they're the people who know.

Personally, I never thought TV would do anything worse than sterilize people. Just goes to show how ignorant a body can be. Seems the picture tube emits rays that break down the enamel on teeth. Makes 'em crumble like chalk in a green liquid.

Terrible, terrible. Actually, all seriousness aside, the orthodontists say that when a child watches television, he often leans a cheek on one hand, pushing on his teeth.

Now tell the truth, didn't my explanation make more sense? Last time I pushed somebody's teeth, they bit the heck out of me.

Come to think of it, I saw one who shall remain nameless, pushing a girl's teeth with his ankle when she asked him to do the Lemon Twist. Some guys'd do anything to avoid fast-dancing.

But talking about pushing on teeth, I've seen kids do the same thing with their hands when they're reading, sleeping or just daydreaming. So television isn't the culprit, it's hands and the answer to that is to cut off the hands.

You know what they say about the hand if it offends you. Guess the same thing applies if it pushes out your teeth. Then again, if you bring in the old thing about an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth, maybe the hand should be gnawed off.

Don't wait too long, though or it might have to be gummed off. Terrible thing to have happen to a six-year old in the prime of life but that's what television does for you. It shortens the life-expectancy too besides sterilizing a person.

Pot Likker

by R-D Santee

I went coon hunting the other night. Now, to the untrained ear, there is no way a coon hunt can be compared to the Democratic and Republican conventions but the men I accompanied made it as clear as a bell to me.

Amos McGillicuddy and J. B. "Bowser" Harp had between them twenty-five dogs. Bluebirds, walkers and leopard curs comprised the makeup of the group.

Amos was the first to let his dogs out on a trail.

We sat on the tail gate of Bowers truck and sipped Jack Daniels and waited for a goodly period of time before we heard a dog "open" (in other words he bellowed) Amos nodded "That's Goober" he said "he's found somethin'."

After about twenty minutes of listening to Goober bark and bellow the other dogs began to drop in with him till they were all yelping in unison.

"Yep" Amos "O' Goober's done convinced 'em it's a coon and they're all in there bellerin' and agrein' and sayin' 'Go git 'im Goober we're right behind ya'."

"Just like a bunch of Demmycrats" Bowser said.

"How so?" I asked.

"Walp of Jimmy stood out there and bellered for a long time that he was on the trail of the Presidency then a few joined him then a few more till by golly they were all in there a hollerin' fer 'im. They're sayin' 'go git it Jimbo! We're right there with you'."

About that time a rustling in the underbrush near the road gained our attention. Amos grabbed his flashlight and shined it in the direction of the disturbance. A positively huge coon scampered across the road.

"Reckon that's the same one your dogs are runnin'?" Bowser asked.

"Don't know," Amos answered "why don't you turn yours out on 'em?"

Bowser set his dogs out on the trail of the coon.

One dog-began yammering as soon as he crossed the road.

"That's ol' A Model" Amos said "He thinks he's found the trail."

A few minutes later another dog opened at least a half mile from A Model.

"That's ol' Cowboy, he says he's found the trail," Amos announced.

For the next hour we listened to Amos' dogs. One barking and yelping that he was on the trail and getting closer and another bellowing that he was the one on the right trail and the other dogs leaving first the one and then the other to join the race.

"That's the Republicans" Bowser said.

The comparison was obvious.

"Who's right and who's wrong?" I asked.

"Don't know," Amos said "They all bark convincin' Bowser's bunch is still together follerin' ol' Goober. The other bunch is doin' more bickerin' and barkin' betwixt themselves than at the coon. He could get away from 'em."

"When will we know which group of dogs actually has the coon?" I asked.

Amos spat some Red Man juice, sipped some Jack Daniels and chuckled "Come November I reckon, Come November."

Duty, Honor...?

"Duty, Honor, Country"

"Duty, Country"

Take your pick. Three guesses which is the motto of the United States Military Academy. Then take another three guesses and decide which is the motto one out of four members of the Class of '77 has decided is enough to live by.

How in the names of Douglas McArthur and Dwight D. Eisenhower can a cadet figure they're merely made a mistake and they should be given a second chance? Yet that's what one of the cadets who stands to lose his chance to become an officer said.

"I will not lie, cheat or steal, nor will I tolerate a fellow cadet who does." But when a cadet cheats, he automatically makes the motto a lie and he is stealing a grade he hasn't earned.

Seems fairly simple. If the mistake is an understanding the honor code, what kind of mistakes might be made in the complex warfare these same people might be called on to wage? Maybe the mistake was in being caught, a concept becoming more and more a trend these days. Or perhaps the mistake is a larger one perpetrated by the Army in thinking there is honor, or a remnant of it, in today's youth.

Which would be more than a mistake, it would be a tragedy. If we must assume a U.S. Army officer and gentleman, which they are by act of Congress, has no honor.

Without honor, the credo of duty and country fall flat. They lose any real meaning except that perhaps the critics are right. Maybe West Point is now turning out little more than mercenaries.

The only comfort in the entire situation is that the U.S. Army obviously doesn't believe that. Otherwise there would be just another cover up with no flap being brought into the open.

Contrary to the opinion of many critics, the honor code at West Point can work. With the only punishment for violation being expulsion from the academy, it's harsh but it can work.

Despite the occasional scandal, the code has worked for 200 years and if it's left alone, the academy might be around to help celebrate the country's tricentennial.

Dear Editor:

Now and then, amidst the sickening carnage and savagery hatred that debases mankind, one catches a glimpse of a better world, and the Arab residents of southern Lebanon, the latter caught up in a murderous enough, in the Middle East. It grew out of the new relationship - it is too soon to call it reconciliation - between the people of Israel and the Arab residents of southern Lebanon, the latter caught up in a murderous civil war. Consider: "Israeli doctors and nurses, rushing to the Israel-Lebanon border on a mission of mercy, have been giving devoted and medical care at specially set up clinics to thousands of sick and wounded Lebanese men, women, and children. Scores of serious cases - both Christian and Moslem - have been moved to a hospital in Israel for intensive treatment. Said one 15-year-old girl whose leg was saved by Israeli surgeons: 'The treatment is even better than I dreamed.' About the same time there was a joyous and perhaps symbolic occurrence in an Israeli hospital - a displaced Lebanese woman gave birth to a son, the first Lebanese 'Sabra.'"

*Hundreds of Lebanese, hungry, penniless, and in moral fear of their fellow Arabs, have flocked to the Israel-Lebanon border. The Israelis, themselves far from affluent, have responded quickly and generously. Said two Lebanese men, fleeing Palestinian guerrillas: "When we saw the first Israeli soldiers, we breathed a sigh of relief."

"Israel has begun to find work for Lebanese whose livelihood was destroyed by the civil war. Many have been committing to jobs in factories, on construction sites and reforestation projects in Northern Israel, working side by side with Israelis."

Small stuff

One of the favorite projects of U.S. Senator Richard Stone these days has been a bill addressing the fishing and shrimping business in the state.

Stone said the shrimpers industry has been the most depressed segment of the fishing business and goes on to tell how the market price of the tasty crustaceans has dropped over the past few years.

We don't claim any inside knowledge about all that but we got depressed every time we walk into a fish market and notice the $4.99 a pound price tag on the jumbo shrimp, or into a grocery store and find a relatively small bag of frozen shrimp will set us back about $6.

Fish are supposed to be brain food and there is certainly food for thought there somewhere.

Trouble is, we can't afford it.

When cooking cabbage, broccoli and Brussels sprouts, a head of brocol let the rest will be present later.

MEANWHILE BACK IN KANSAS CITY...

Karen's Korner

The men have tried it and seemed to have been successful, so now the women are going to have an attempt at sponsoring a softball tournament for area teams around the lake.

The Glades Women's Softball League, representing teams from Pahokee, South Bay and Belle Glade, will be hosting a softball tournament this coming weekend here in Belle Glade. At press time, three teams have definitely entered with several more possible prospects. It is hoped that the tournament will draw from eight to ten teams.

In addition to earning money for the league, we're looking forward to having a grand old time playing softball and meeting different faces, and there's no better way than to get together for a tournament.

Local merchants are giving donations to help with trophies, and several men are willing to umpire and, altogether, it's gonna be a busy time.

At this time, it was planned to have first, second and third place trophies for the corresponding teams, with each of the members of the championship, team receiving an individual trophy. Got your interest, huh?

Can't blame you. I've always wanted a trophy of my own too, instead of a traveling trophy which disappears whenever you slip into second place.

By the way, for those of you who don't know, Wallis Pharmacy won the championship this year and will be regaining the trophy which was eluded our grasp the past two years after having it six consecutive years. Yep, it's coming home. Sure would be nice if we could keep it home. The team of Timesaver has kept it the past couple of years, winning two straight championships. Funny, I can remember six years ago when that team was the laughingstock of the league. Guess they turned the tables on everyone.

Well, familiar faces have come and gone since then and new ones have cropped up, and maybe with the growing and TIEN, who knows, maybe we can talk area businesses into helping construct another softball baseball field.

Oh well, if you find yourself at home twiddling your thumbs this weekend, come on out to the Belle Glade ballpark. I guarantee it's gonna be exciting.

After a few false starts and numerous changes of the schedule, the Lassie League for girls has finally begun and I don't know about the rest of you, but the wait has been worth while.

We had originally planned to begin in June, but due to the field being already taken, we had to postpone. Then it was July - but almost all the girls were gone on vacation. And finally it's August, with school around the corner. Sorry girls, but you have to face the inevitable, it is coming.

Thanks to the volunteer help of several women, the league consists of four teams with at least one coach and most of them have two - and then there's a team who has three. All the coaches have done a great deal of work with the girls and it has shown. We've got some great ballplayers in this bunch. The younger ones really seem to enjoy playing also and I tell you, there's nothing so funny and heart-warming as to see one small girl stick up her glove and accidentally or on purpose catch a long hit.

She's so surprised and excited at finally "getting" one she squeals and forgets to throw it.

Anyhow, this year's league, though it's gonna be a short season, promises to be great and we are planning on another season, only we will probably begin much earlier, say February or March.

Women's All Stars meet in softball action

It was a game of defense in the Glades Women's Softball League as the Team "A" and Team "B" All-Stars clashed in a traditional low-scoring game. The two All-Star teams, each composed of three of the chosen best players from the four women's teams other than the championship team, faced each other last Thursday evening at the Canal Point ballpark.

Team "B", clad in pale blue shirts, emerged as the victor after a seventh-inning batting duel. The girls took a one-run lead in the top of the first inning when Celia Sullivan scored and stretched it to two in the second with Julia Clements rounding the bases.

The lead was shortened in the bottom of the second inning as the Team "A" offense got on the scoreboard when Loretta Pugh came across the plate on Peggy Chavis' base hit.

For the next three and a half innings, both teams controlled defensive fielding, with only one runner advancing as far as third base in the bottom of the fifth inning. Team "A" managed to push another run across in the bottom of the sixth inning when Jenny Hall scored to tie the balance and only a backup by Team "B"'s shortstop and an accurate throw and tag at third base prevented the opposition from going ahead as Silvia Rodriguez tagged Shelley Goodbread for the out. A fly to the centerfielder and a grounder to the second baseman provided the other two outs, with a runner stranded on second base.

Silvia Rodriguez broke the tie in the top of the seventh inning by leading off with a single for Team "B" and scoring on Debbie Lord's single. The runners cushioned the lead by adding five more runs by Celia Sullivan, Debbie Lord, Sheila Meade, Kim Miller and Donna Garcia before centerfielder pulled in a fly for the third out.

The Team "A" batters tried to rally for a comeback and succeeded with two runs, but a close tag play at homeplate prevented Loretta Pugh from scoring and Nora Teyrouz was out on a force play at third base a few plays later to end the game. The final score was Team "B" All-Stars 8; Team "A" All-Stars 4.

Members of the Team "B" All-Stars were Celia Sullivan, Sheila Meade and Julia Clements representing Timesaver; Debbie Lord, Suzanne Griggs and Maggie Mooney from Dixie Fried Chicken; Kim Miller, Sherry Miller and Silvia Rodriguez of A. Duda and Sons; and Donna Jean Garcia, Linda Anderson and Linda Mims representing Glades Sugar.

Members of the Team "A" All-Stars were Kathy Moore, Nora Teyrouz and Jenny Hall from Dixie Fried Chicken; Peggy Chavis, Rose Goodbread and Shelley Goodbread of Glades Sugar; Becky Rhodes and Cindy Smith representing A. Duda and Sons; Loretta Pugh and Judy Absher from Timesaver. Players missing were Mary Lou Stevens (Timesaver) and Diana Duda (A. Duda and Sons).

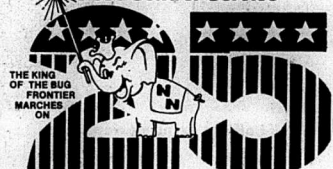

The Team "B" All-Stars, as winner of the All-Star game, was to have challenged the first place team, Wallis Pharmacy, Tuesday evening, Aug. 17, at the Belle Glade Little League-Jaycee ballpark.

HOW TO INCREASE SUCROSE LEVELS IN YOUR SUGAR CANE. WITHOUT AFFECTING CANE TONNAGE.

You can do it with Polaris® Plant Growth Regulator by Monsanto, the chemical that ripens sugar cane.

Through extensive field trials, Monsanto has proven that, under poor ripening conditions, cane treated with Polaris can yield more sucrose at harvest than untreated cane.

Polaris not only helps overcome poor ripening conditions caused by warm, wet weather. It does not significantly affect cane tonnage. Monsanto has kept precise TCA records on trials since 1972. Result: The difference in TCA between the plots treated with Polaris and the untreated plots was insignificant.

Find out more about Polaris, the plant growth regulator that ripens sugar cane and helps increase sucrose, despite warm, wet weather. Without significantly affecting tonnage. Contact your Monsanto representative or the distributor for Polaris in your area for the full details.

As with all agricultural products, read and follow the Polaris label.

Wolf-Hoffman exchange vows

Wolf, Hoffman exchange vows

In a woodland setting at Stone Mountain, Georgia, Janet Ann Wolf and Timothy Harold Hoffman exchanged marriage vows on June 28. The Rev. Howard J. Schoenfeldt officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Wolf of Belle Glade and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hoffman, of Livingston, N.J.

Mrs. Jon Port was her sister's matron of honor, and Emily Ann Port, niece of the bride, was flower girl. George Benjamin Marshall of Atlanta served as best man. Vocal selections with guitar accompaniment preceded the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a tiered full-length dress of natural cotton with scalloped cotton lace accenting the collar, skirt tiers, and edge of the matching wide-brimmed hat. A short veil was attached to the open crown of the hat. She wore a single strand of pearls given to her by the groom, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies, white rosebuds, and baby's breath.

The matron of honor wore a full-length dress of pastel print with cape sleeves. Her hat was of natural straw, and she carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and baby's breath. The flower girl wore a matching dress, with baby's breath in her hair, and carried a small basket of daisies. A reception was held at the Grist Mill Pavilion at the park, where a buffet grill supper was served. Arrangements of hurricane candles, and daisies centered the tables. Assisting in serving the wedding cake and punch were Nancy Wolf and Jean Wolf, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Larry Estepa. Also assisting were

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Yarborough. Out-of-town guests were present from Midland and St. Joseph, Michigan; Memphis, Tennessee; Fords and Livingston, New Jersey; Houston, Texas; Binghamton, New York; and Lake Placid, Tallahassee, and Gainesville, Fla. The couple are now at home in College Park, Ga.

14 Glades farmers on celery group

A total of 14 Glades area farmers were recently named by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as members of the 1976-77 Florida Celery Committee.

William C. Knope, field representative with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service in Lakeland, said the committee investigates supply and demand conditions and recommends to USDA the total annual marketable quantity of celery that should be handled during the season.

This provides the Secretary of Agriculture a basis for setting producer marketing allotments.

Chosen as members in Group 1 are John O. Schlechter, Charles D. Wilkinson, William D. Gressinger and C. D. McClure, all of Belle Glade; and Roy Vandegrift Jr. of Pahokee.

Group 4 members are Billy Rogers of South Bay and Fritz Stein Jr. of Belle Glade.

Katherine Price group to meet

The Katherine Price Foundation Board of Directors will meet at 8 p.m. Aug. 28 at the Community United Methodist Church in Belle Glade for the first time since the directors were elected.

The board was elected July 22 to approve a draft of a charter of incorporation. An attorney will use this draft to carry out incorporation procedures so the Foundations can receive tax-exempt contributions.

All contributions will be used to carry on the work of Mrs. Price, who has distributed clothing, food and household items to needy people of the Glades for the past 30 years.

Rosenwald PTA lauded

Rosenwald Elementary PTA was lauded recently by the Palm Beach County PTA Council and used as an example of what can be done by a small group in raising funds to help retire the mortgage on the PTA State Headquarters Building in Orlando.

"In the community of less than 3,000, with a school enrollment of less than 300 students in the K-4 grades, and with a total PTA membership of 84 they did it," said a newsletter recently mailed to area PTAs.

The newsletter went on to say the Rosenwald PTAs raised a total of $200 last spring for the mortgage retirement.

"Rosenwald PTA stands alone," the newsletter reads, "isolated from cooperating PTAs, since the nearest PTA is 42 miles away, and in an area that is not even PTA oriented, since it is the only school in the western part of the county with a PTA, although there is a school for grades 5 and 6 in South Bay and there are seven other elementary schools and four junior and senior high schools within a radius of 25 miles.

The Palm Beach County Council of Parent-Teacher

Associations commends Rosenwald PTA members, and especially Rosenwald Elementary School Principal Getchell Singleton and PTA President Dorothy Phillips.

Their faith and loyalty to PTA surely demonstrates that by heading a call for help, when needed, miracles can indeed be performed.

"If those 84 PTA members in tiny Rosenwald Elementary School think that much about the children and youth of Florida, all we can say is: We wish you could pass along some of your enthusiasm to the other 218,912 PTA members in the 831 local units in Florida," the newsletter ended.

Principal Getchell Singleton said the Rosenwald Elementary PTA last year was an active group which responded to the state PTA dilemma by raising the funds with two cool and a bicycle raffle. "It was a quick Singleton said, "an plan to make at least more donation than possibly two."

He lauded Mrs. and PTA vice-president Rosetta King for activity in the year and said the active in other area

Let's work together to make sure a strong America united under the symbol of our flag.

"SUPPORT AMERICA"

100 Years Since 1776

Our previous heritage established in the flag of the United States, is no other today as it was when written for the eyes of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. It should be the symbol of the world to us and for all Americans to defend. And in the tradition of the American Revolution, we should not despair in the face of the flag—let's defend it. While we may disagree in its symbols, we should not disagree in the goal—let's defend it.

Our flag is a symbol, not of sentiment, but of history; the history of our land and our people. It is the flag that has led us to the freedom we enjoy today. Let's defend it with the same spirit that we defended it in the past.
